Cincinnati, May 21.—The Superbas were victorious in an exciting Sunday game at League Park this afternoon, and thereby won their first of the series with the Reds on the latter's home grounds. More than twelve thousand fans turned out in the face of threatening rain to pull for the locals, and their pulling was as vociferous as it was useless.

Jimmy Hughes did the twirling for the visitors, and with the exception of one inning he covered himself with glory. The California wonder shied up an assortment of parabolic stunts during the last seven innings that proved beyond the Reds' batting solution. In that period only two strikes were made from his sterling pitching, and these were in succession, by Wood and Phillips, after two batters had been retired in the seventh. In the fourth, fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth innings only three Reds found Hughes.

Buck Ewing tried his new lefty phenom, Frank Hahn, who won all of the three games he pitched up to date, but facing such a string of clever batsmen as the Superbas have seemed to terrify Mr. Hahn. He was wild as a Texas steer, giving three bases on balls in the second inning and two more in the third. After Casey had led off with a clean safety in the first and Keeler had lined to St. Louis, Seibach saved the southpaw with a wonderful catch of Kelley's liner. Casey, who had turned third base on his way home, was easily doubled by a throw to first.

Phillips, who followed Hahn, had splendid control and kept the visitors from adding a single run to their score.

The Superbas tallied two of their three runs in the second, on bases on balls to Dahlen, Anderson and Farrell, and a single by Hughes.

The game was particularly impressive on account of the smoothness of its progress. There was no kicking and no concession for the home team, and the umpires showed good judgment in all their decisions. Score:

CINCINNATI. BROOKLYN.

"SI" SEYMOUR IN FORM.

St. Louis, May 21.—At last the Giants are out of the pine hole, and 20,000 St. Louis fans saw them make the shift. "SI" Seymour celebrated his first victory of the season at the same time. "SI" was at his best, and was superbly supported.

The only error made by the visitors in the first game was one of his own crazy throws to first base.

The first game was won by the Giants 8 to 4.

The second game was lost to the Giants mainly through Doherty's wildness. He gave eight bases on balls in five innings, four of them coming in the second inning, which with two timely hits gave the Yankees four runs.

The Giants left for Cincinnati at 8 o'clock this evening.

HOW JEFFRIES TRAINS FOR HIS GREAT FISTIC ENCOUNTER.

He Never Tires in Preparing to Meet Fitzsimmons in the Ring.
EARNST IN HIS WORK.
The Noted Heavy Weight Has His Own Peculiar Way of Playing Croquet.
A STRONG HAND AT THE OARS.

THERE is a saying that the man who knows how to play also knows how to work, and Jim Jeffries certainly is a wonder at both. He is the most consistent worker in the heavy weight class, and best of all he is never peevish. He goes to his morning task like a man working by the job, and never complains or makes a sign of being bored. His runs are usually the same distance; he never takes short cuts or strolls. He believes he needs the work, so does it.

It is the same in the gymnasium. He fights the bag with the same savage earnestness today as the day he started work. The handball court sees him working like a slave trying to beat two men, both of whom cheat him for at least an hour each day. He fights Ryan, his brother and everybody else about quarters who feels disposed to don the gloves. He puts in the day like a laboring man. He seldom talks, just works.

He has but two play spells, and the first one grows very much like work at the close. Jeff has a boat, a flat-bottomed, light affair, and after dinner each day he starts out for a row. So long as he goes along leisurely it is play, but Ryan or Deane usually comes down to the lake and wants a ride. With one man in the stern of the boat the light craft becomes a canal boat that drags all the water in the lake behind it. Of course they have races and cheat Jeff disgracefully, but he likes the boat and still hopes to win just one race before the fight.

It is after supper that Jeff plays. Fitzsimmons usually puts in the evening singing sentimental songs. Jeff can't sing, but he can do something in the line of croquet playing that not only makes every one else sing, but yell. Jeff gets down on his knees, sprints, takes the mallet in both hands, then swipes. The whole gang howls and does everything possible to keep Ryan and Jeff as close together as possible.

Everybody is usually out when they are about at the turning stake and then comes the duel. Jeff can get more fun out of one game of croquet than most men. He can't beat anybody but Ryan, but play! Why, the natives come for miles to see him.

Double play—Davis and Wilson. Bases on balls—Off Seymour, 6; of Young, 1; Bulk—Seymour. By—By Young, 1; Young, 1; Young, 1. Time of game—Two hours. Umpires—Smith and Burns.

PUPIL WAS GAME TO THE FINISH.

Jockey Odom, Too, Deserves Credit for Winning the Stallion Stakes.

The one fact made evident by the result of the Champion Stallion Stakes at Morris Park on Saturday was that the season's two-year-olds are on the whole of excellent class. Without any intention of robbing Pupil of any of the glory of his victory, one is compelled to admit that in the bunch behind him were several that before the season is much further advanced will give him a stronger argument than they did on Saturday, and in some cases they are almost sure to beat him.

As for His Royal Highness, his showing bears out the claims made after his defeat by Doublet in the Juvenile Stakes—that is, he is a colt of marvellous speed, but lacks staying ability. His owner, John Daily, does not take this view. He believes him one of the best colts he ever owned, and this means a marvellous good one, for "Holmdel" has produced some mighty speedy ones in recent years.

Had the race on Saturday been four and one-half furlongs, he would have won under a mill, but that extra sixteenth brought a collapse that dulled the merit of what he had shown earlier in the struggle. It is true his rider, H. Martin, lost some ground by taking him over toward the outside rail, but when Pupil challenged there was no response. One would judge from the way he was running that there was a lot in reserve, but when let down he was as willing to stop as those that had been under punishment for the greater part of the journey. Until he has shown a better disposition to run on, he must be put down as a sprinter.

Pupil's showing was flawless. He was somewhat handicapped by a lot of dead weight in the saddle, for Odom can ride at 56 pounds, still the little boy put up a dash as strong and vigorous, with a rush as well timed, as though he was a veteran in place of a recent graduate from the apprentice ranks. Pupil's stable companion, "Mudrine," generally believed to be the better of the pair, was prominent for about three furlongs, then retired.

St. Phipps is another that seems entitled to one more chance before being put on the list of over-rated ones. Those who have watched his work all Spring will claim he is pointing his best of the year. His last run, at Belmont, was a fine one. He was sent East, which means Indefinite. Motley, Montague and several more of unquestioned merit.

Virginia Earl's race was in every way a satisfactory one, but for the fact that she failed to get a share of the purse. Valencia, who earned the short end of the

EXPERT ENGLISH GOLFERS TO BATTLE.

All the Cracks Will Meet To-morrow on the Prestwick Links.

An important golfing event in which the golfers of the world will take a deep interest is the fourteenth annual amateur championship of Great Britain, which begins to-morrow at the Prestwick Links. It is the greatest golfing event of the year on the other side, and as there are 103 entries it will be a large field to handle.

It will all be at eighteen-hole match play until the finals are reached, which will be at thirty-six holes. In this respect the championship differs greatly from the American system, which is generally acknowledged to be far the better plan. Under their method the good and the players are all drawn together, and by the time the poor players are disposed of the more expert players are pretty well fagged out and the competition dwindle down to almost a question of endurance.

Under the American ruling the poorer players are wiped out the very first day in a thirty-six hole medal play, qualifying round, as only the thirty-two best scores can compete in the match play rounds at thirty-six holes.

There were 120 entries last year at Morristown, and 104 actual starters, still the championship was conducted as smoothly as machine work. An effort is being made to have the American system adopted on the other side, and the matter may be brought up to-day at the meeting in Prestwick.

There will be at least one representative from this country among those who will compete for championship honors to-morrow, as J. H. Wilgum, of the Oswestia Club, of Chicago, is among the list of entries. He won the amateur championship of the United States Golf Association in 1896, at Shinnecock Hills, and again in 1897 on the Chicago Golf Club Links, at Wheaton, Ill. He was sick and off his game last year, and did not even qualify in the first thirty-two, but he is playing in much better form now, and also expects to compete in the amateur championship this year, which is to be held early in July on the Oswestia Club Links.

F. G. Tait is the present champion of Great Britain, and his most dangerous rival is considered to be H. H. Hilton, who has won the open championship twice, and on three occasions has been the runner up in the amateur championship. Hilton is playing in brilliant style this season, and on April 26, with a scratch score of 75, won the gold medal at Haydock, in a field of 128 competitors. A list of the previous amateur winners is as follows:

Year. Winner. Runner-up. Where played.
1886—Horace Hutchinson, Harry Lamb, St. Andrews.
1887—Horace Hutchinson, Harry Lamb, St. Andrews.
1888—John Ball, Jr., J. E. Laidlay, Prestwick.
1889—J. M. Laidlay, J. E. Laidlay, Prestwick.
1890—John Ball, Jr., J. E. Laidlay, Prestwick.
1891—J. E. Laidlay, J. E. Laidlay, Prestwick.
1892—J. E. Laidlay, J. E. Laidlay, Prestwick.
1893—Peter Anderson, J. E. Laidlay, Prestwick.
1894—John Ball, Jr., J. E. Laidlay, Prestwick.
1895—L. B. McNeill, John Ball, Jr., St. Andrews.
1896—F. G. Tait, J. H. Hilton, Sandwick.
1897—J. T. Allan, S. M. Ferguson, Haydock.
1898—F. G. Tait, S. M. Ferguson, Haydock.

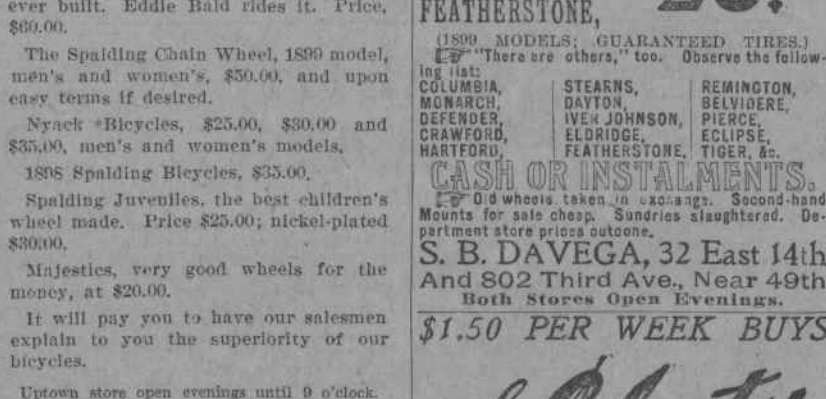

The annual Spring championship for the women members of the Ardley Club will begin to-morrow with an eighteen-hole medal play round, the eight best scores qualifying to play off at match play. The prize is a cup offered by the club to be won three times, not necessarily in succession, to be played for twice each year—in May and October.

The men will begin their Spring championship competition on Saturday for the President's Cup, the conditions for which are that the cup shall be played for each Spring and Fall, the last Saturday in May and October. It becomes the property of the one who shall win it three times, not necessarily in succession. It shall be played for by members of the club and subscribers only, eight scores qualifying to play off at match play.

GERMAN MARSHEN CHALLENGE VALE.

Crack Hamburgers Ready to Meet the New Haven Men.

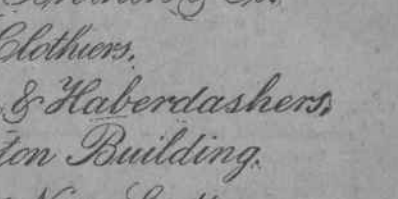

New Haven, May 21.—Captain Fred Allen, of the Yale crew, to-day received a challenge from the Hamburg Allgemeine-Alster Club, of Germany, to compete in the annual national regatta at Hamburg in August. The challenge is written in German. Captain Allen says that the Yale crew will be obliged to decline it because no preparations have been made to cross the ocean this summer and because the regatta is to be rowed on Sunday, and it would be impossible to gain the consent of the Yale faculty to row on that day.

ON THE GOLF LINKS.

There will be a ladies' handicap played at the links of the Marine and Field Club on Wednesday for two sets of clubs presented by W. K. Brown as first and second prizes. It will be eighteen holes, medal play, and the scores can be made at any time during the day.

The women of the Wee Burn Club will compete on Thursday in an eighteen-hole medal play handicap. Club medals are offered for the winners in classes A and B. The men will compete in a similar contest on Saturday. These handicaps will continue each month and special prizes at the end of the season will be played for by all medal winners.

The next big open tournament will be that of the Baltusrol Golf Club, which will take place in accordance with the dates fixed by the Metropolitan Golf Association, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 1, 2 and 3. All events will be open to members of clubs belonging to the United States Golf Association, whose rules will govern all play. The prizes will consist of the Governor's Cup, Consolation Cup, Handicap Cup, cup for best score medal play, and cup for the Inconsolables, presented by Bruce Fries.
